

Revivals And Church History :: A hundred years from now

A hundred years from now - posted by Tears_of_joy, on: 2006/5/11 15:20

A hundred years from now by Warren Parker

It will not make much difference friend a hundred years from now if you live in a stately mansion or a floating river scow if the clothes you wear were a tailor made or just pieced together somehow
If you eat big steaks or beans and cake a hundred years from now

Won't matter what your bank account or the maker of car you drive for the grave will claim all your riches and fame and the things for which you strive There's a deadline that we all must meet, noone will show up late it won't matter all the places you've been, each one will keep that date

We will only have in eternity what we gave away on earth when we go to the grave we can only save the things of eternal worth what matters friend the earthly gain for which some men will bow for your destiny will be sealed you see a hundred years from now

As quoted by Leonard Ravenhill, (<https://www.sermonindex.net/modules/mydownloads/singlefile.php?lid4557>) Choosing Rather To Suffer

Re: A hundred years from now - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2006/8/1 4:00

this is a tremendous poem, very convicting.

Re: A hundred years from now - posted by hmmhmm (), on: 2007/5/6 14:30

We will only have in eternity what we gave away on earth