

General Topics :: Poem - "The field that was lost"*Poem - "The field that was lost" - posted by theopenlife, on: 2007/2/4 3:07

I wrote a poem tonight. Any comments are welcome. God bless. -M:.

"The field that was lost"

The sowers did not cast their seed,
nor gatherers hone their blades.
The waterers chose instead to sleep
within the well's cool shade.

The sowers bragged about their knowledge of the seed they hoarded up
while the gatherers sang and leaned on their sythes
and drank from the waterers' cup.

The workers played as the season passed;
the wheat of the field was thin.
What little sprang up was burned into ash,
too fruitless for gathering in.

The Master summoned the workers to trial
to account for the famine they caused.
None could speak except to confess neglect for the field that was lost.