

General Topics :: I wept much today.

I wept much today. - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2007/2/13 20:17

I wept much today.

I wept much today.

I wept for you, and I wept for me.

I wept for those who cannot see.

I wept for the grief of my past,

The joy of my present,

And the hope of my future.

I wept for what the end of the faithless will be;

And I learned from my weeping, there is a decree.

Only eyes washed with tears may truly see.

- Anonymous

Re: I wept much today. - posted by ccchhhrrriiisss (), on: 2007/2/13 20:32

Wow! I copied this one, Greg! Thank you for sharing!

:-)

p.s. - I am weeping too.

Re: I wept much today. - posted by JoeA (), on: 2007/2/13 20:32

Quote:

-----I wept for you, and I wept for me.

I wept for those who cannot see.

Powwerful stuff. I read a quote today that said "Pray for the lost. . . as though you were one of them."

Re: I wept much today. - posted by jordanamo, on: 2007/2/13 20:54

Cool.. where'd you find that?

Jordan

Re: I wept much today., on: 2007/2/13 22:29

Quote:

-----And I learned from my weeping, there is a decree. Only eyes washed with tears may truly see.

Oh the blindness of dry eyes! Through weeping may God open the eyes of the church to her desperate need for revival!

Thanks for sharing this.

Re: I wept much today. - posted by Goldminer (), on: 2007/2/13 23:21

As the result of this wonderful thread I will recommend a book that I read called:

"Brokenness the Forgotten Factor in Prayer" By Mickey Bonner. It is excellent, do a search and it will come up.