

General Topics :: Salmon Determination

Salmon Determination - posted by Goldminer (), on: 2007/3/29 13:28

SALMON DETERMINATION

Regardless of the obstacles, salmon don't retreat. If we as people were determined in all our endeavors as a salmon is to spawn, we would also be more successful.

(Arctic Roadrunner)

Re: Salmon Determination - posted by enid, on: 2007/3/29 14:07

Maybe that's why Jesus made us fishers of men!

I know, that was painful for me too!

God bless.

Re: Salmon Determination - posted by Compton (), on: 2007/3/29 14:38

Quote:

-----If we as people were determined in all our endeavors as a salmon is to spawn, we would also be more successful.
-----

To be honest, looking back there are times when I wish I was less determined in some endeavors. I would have saved myself a few regrets. ;-)

MC

Re: - posted by Goldminer (), on: 2007/3/29 15:47

Quote:

-----

Compton wrote:

Quote:

-----

To be honest, looking back there are times when I wish I was less determined in some endeavors. I would have saved myself a few regrets. ;-)

MC

-----

I know a secular business wrote this proverb, however we need to be this way in our pursuit of God. Salmon will reach their goal or die trying.

Re: - posted by Compton (), on: 2007/3/29 16:55

Your'e absolutely right GoldMiner. I understood you meant being determined towards the things of God. I was just sighin g out loud at the folly of being so determined over worldly and foolish things. A recent post here used the metaphor of children spending all their energy to roll up a big snow man only to see it melt away the next day! (Sadly I can relate!)

Blessings,

MC

Re: Salmon Determination, on: 2007/3/29 18:27

Quote:

-----
Goldminer wrote:
SALMON DETERMINATION

Regardless of the obstacles, salmon don't retreat. If we as people were determined in all our endeavors as a salmon is to spawn, we would also be more successful.

(Arctic Roadrunner)
-----

Hi Arctic...

I have a tape with one song that begins:
Any Old Dead Fish Can Float Downstream With the Rest..."

It's the life within us that drives us "upstream", not our own self-effort.

Jesus is our life. If HE is in us we will constantly seek the "upstream", because, like the salmon, we simply can't help it!

Again like the salmon, we may fail again and again, but our instinct is always towards the "upstream".

It's not the failures that matter so much as the "orientation" of our hearts - especially when we fail.

Surely that was why David was accepted by the Lord, but King Saul (whose sins, except at the end, were apparently less serious) was rejected. David, for all his faults, knew how to repent.

And he was called "a man after God's own heart"

Blessings

Jeannette