

SermonIndex Announcements :: New Featured sermon banner design

New Featured sermon banner design - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2008/6/30 14:11

[Image: https://www.sermonindex.net/featured_sermon31.gif]

Saints,

any comments on this? I have felt doing a re-design was necessary for awhile and keeping it green puts it more inline with the sermonindex look and feel. Also not having to find hi-res pictures of every speaker helps also in featuring sermon speakers that don't have images available.

Re: New Featured sermon banner design - posted by Fugodedios (), on: 2008/6/30 15:33

looks good brother

Re: New Featured sermon banner design - posted by tjservant (), on: 2008/6/30 15:50

Could be my monitor (cheap laptop), but I had a little trouble making out the speakers name. The background is kind of ..busy.

Just my 2 cents. I have always enjoyed SI's simple format.

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2008/6/30 15:58

sorry saints, I just re-designed the re-design and made changes to the front page of SI:

<https://www.sermonindex.net/>

any thoughts or comments are appreciated.

Re: New Featured sermon banner design - posted by JoanM, on: 2008/6/30 20:27

"and keeping it green" ???? It's not green now on the home page. I don't recall ever having seen green there. My start button is green, medium density, I've got color all over on the site, so its not my computer. There is this faint cast of near zero density blue, robbin's egg blue, in the background of the featured sermon on the home page. That color fits (tons lighter of course) the side color of the site. There's also tons of color on the above Re: strip now.

The density on the 15,000 really pops. :-) Pictures should not be a burden. This works. But pictures do catch attention. Speaking of which, I miss the Old Path picture. :(Really. One glance at that (any) Old Path picture and you had a heart-beat of the site. Without the picture, that corner is, oh my, kinda messy letters in a box, meaningfull words, but just not so beautiful.

I better say something wise like...It makes you look like you're 10 years younger? :-P