

General Topics :: Looking for bible software online

Looking for bible software online - posted by EvangelistC, on: 2008/11/22 17:30

Does anyone know of any good bible software for download online? I have E-sword, and Theophilus, but looking for something with a little more material.

Re: Looking for bible software online - posted by sojourner7 (), on: 2008/11/22 19:52

Try Logos bible study software. You will find the link on the left side column above your menu.

Re:, on: 2008/11/23 8:08

e sword is a free online software program. You have bibles, commentaries, dictionaries and other books written by Pink, Watson, Wesley and so on.

(<http://www.e-sword.net/>) <http://www.e-sword.net/>

Re: Looking for bible software online - posted by Lysa (), on: 2008/11/23 14:39

Quote:

EvangelistC wrote:

Does anyone know of any good bible software for download online? I have E-sword, and Theophilus, but looking for something with a little more material.

I highly recommend the Onlinebible (OLB). It can be downloaded for free from:

(<http://www.onlinebible.net/>) Online Bible

It has dozens of bible translations, commentaries, dictionaries, maps, devotionals, apologetics materials, and dozens of other resources available for download at no charge. They do charge a nominal fee, however, for the modern translations of the Bible, including NIV, NASB, NKJV, ESV, NLT, NRSV, AMP, etc.

I personally love it. It is like all the open software out, people are constantly helping update it and make it better to keep it free. You can create your own books to add to it (for your own use of course). Or there are many user modules that are in the public domain that are available for download for free.

Re:, on: 2008/11/23 15:00

Also have Bible Navigator and Quickverse, though they are not free, but do offer some great tools.