Can anyone tell me how I can download sermons to my hard drive and then copy to cd? Some of my friends do not have internet connections, and would love to hear the sermons here.

This is how I manage downloading and production of CD's:

1. Prepare a new file to save your downloads.
2. (I use Windows XP.) Right-click the file you want to download. Click "Save target as..." Choose file and file name. Click "Save" to begin download.

I use a RealOne Player to manage the conversion of the MP3 files and copying them to a CD – to be downloaded for free. Conversion and copying run in the same process.

Extremely simple procedure: Right-click on the file you want to burn, Click "Burn CD in RealOneplayer" and follow the instructions in the frames to follow.

Hi,

I found the Getright download manager very useful in getting the sermons down, especially if your connection is very slow and the server is prone to timeout. I don't know the state of telecommunications in your country, but here it would be almost impossible to download megabytes of data without it, especially cool sermons. ;-)
