Favorite David Wilkerson sermon - posted by BrockSawyer, on: 2004/9/22 12:40

I think "A Call to Anguish" is unbelievable.

Also "A Broken Down City Without Walls."

What do you all think?

I don't really have a favorite sermon from David Wilkerson. I'm just glad there are men of God like this still alive in America.

"Passing Under the Rod"

"Fourth Tabernacle"

And many others...

Continue to pray for Pastor Wilkerson and his son Gary as they continue to share Christ at pastor conferences around the world...I think the next stop is Zambia.

Amen this message has a particular burden associated with it that is surely something the Lord Himself is trying to convey to the church as a whole.

Another great message for me is "men of another sort"

Any older vintage recording of Wilkerson is also well worth the listen.

There are so many great sermons from Brother Dave on SI. I could name many but "A Call to Anguish" speaks to my heart repeatedly. If I sense I'm becoming too introspective, which I tend to do, I play this message.

Anyone have a copy of Fourth Tabernacle? I'd like to hear it..

One of the first messages that pops to my mind, that I am still amazed by - is the last one he preached at Radio City Music Hall a year or two ago. It was an AMAZING take on Peter in the boat, awesome word - quite a fresh understanding of the word.

My favorite Wilkerson sermon is "An Habitation of God"-it blew my mind to think Someone as Holy and Powerful as God, and our Lord Jesus would want that kind of relationship with a flawed human. Mankind is not capable on their best days of this deep a love. Bro. Wilkerson's 6 part series "The Mission and Ministry of the Holy Spirit" is my favorite series. Never had the Holy Ghost been so thoroughly explained, in a way that made me so hungry for him.

Ouch! This one hurts, but it is good. Any thoughts on this one? I made some major changes after I heard this. The Holy Spirit knows our hearts, and I want my heart pure, cos I want to see God! Bro. Wilkerson's insight could only have come from above.

My favourite is "Jesus took a towel" it displays the heart of our Saviour in such a powerful way and is a real challenge especially to those of us who minister to others, and who watch other ministries who may be at times off key.

It keeps me clinging to Christ every time I think on it.
