

Devotional Thoughts :: Contention is always unfortunate by William Gurnall

Contention is always unfortunate by William Gurnall - posted by Joyful_Heart, on: 2011/2/28 13:43

Contention is always unfortunate--whether with neighbors or friends, wife or husband-but worst of all with God. If God cannot please you and your heart rises against Him, what hopes are there of your pleasing Him? Love cannot think any evil of God, nor endure to hear any evil spoken of Him.

Jesus is Lord

Re: Contention is always unfortunate by William Gurnall - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2011/2/28 13:53

Quote:

-----Contention is always unfortunate--whether with neighbors or friends, wife or husband-but worst of all with God.

Or with Christian brothers and sisters.

con·ten·tion;  

Â—noun

1.
a struggling together in opposition; strife.
2.
a striving in rivalry; competition; contest.
3.
strife in debate; dispute; controversy.
4.
a point contended for or affirmed in controversy.