

General Topics :: Humility poem by me!

Humility poem by me! - posted by markitats (), on: 2004/11/19 16:42

"The Birth of Humility"

Humility was born many years ago inside a hay filled manger,

as humility became older,

humility walked amongst it's own people as a stranger.

You see, humility doesn't look to be the leader but the one who serves,

if you are to be the greatest in the kingdom that is what humility said you deserve.

Humility never sought to be praised, but gave the Father all the glory, saying not my will but thy will be done,

in which was part of his story.

If your are looking for the greatest example of humility you may look to the place of the skull, there humility hung on a cross the whole time in agony, because the pain wouldn't dull.

That part of the story started at Gethsemane which is known as a garden, humility lowered itself to the place of a servant,

so all our sins could be pardoned.

I bet you're wondering I know this humility character as Jesus, many say he was simply sent to the earth,

so that in everything he would please us.

I have to object to my dear reader that you are very wrong by your thought, you see humility in all of his obedience was the example in the life that he taught.

Obedience started his road to humility by forsaking his heavenly throne, dwelling with a people that always seemed to do the things his teachings could never condone.

Martin Luther declared, "God created the world out of nothing, as we should be,"

only at that point of nothingness, the humility of Jesus could ever dwell in thee.