Salmond tight-lipped on gay marriage in Scotland - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2012/5/14 11:35

Scottish First Minister, Alex Salmond, has refused to say whether Scotland will redefine marriage while responses to the public consultation are still being analysed.

And it emerged that the consultation on an independence referendum received less than one third of the level of responses that the consultation on redefining marriage received.

Alex Salmond made the comments yesterday as he responded to a question from Scottish Liberal Democrat leader Willie Rennie, at First Minister's Question Time. ...
