Lesser Known Preachers/Sermons On SermonInex - posted by hulseys (), on: 2012/11/9 23:49

The treasure of SermonIndex has always been the collection of audio and video sermons by some of the greatest preachers in our lifetimes. Zac Poonen, David Wilkerson, Carter Conlon...etc. all are tremendous men of God. But there are many many more who go almost unnoticed.

I like to go through what I call the "basement" of the audio sermon section and find hidden treasures that few people have listened to. From time to time I'll post a link to some of those sermons in this thread so that you all can be made aware of these hidden treasures also.

This link will take you to a sermon titled 'Reversal of Values' by David Jackman.

Brief Description: Losing our lives for the sake of Christ is not the domain of heroic Christians. Instead, when the disciples began to see Christ as He really was, giving up their lives for Him was the only logical thing to do. In this reversal, life was found in death, glory in suffering, gain in loss.

I hope you are blessed by this sermon.

Sermon: Broken Cisterns by Arnold Cook

Brief Descriptions: The Church is embracing modern means and philosophies and abandoning the "Old Paths". It's becoming a social institution ran by the wisdom of men rather than a heavenly one inhabited by God. A plea for repentance.

Gracious Speech by Alan Martin

<https://www.sermonindex.net/modules/mydownloads/singlefile.php?lid=13213&commentView=itemComments>

Description: "The Body of Christ is being ripped apart by a bunch of truth speakers," laments Alan Martin. Our report and observations of others around us may be accurate, but are they missing hope and faith? Like Aaron our job is stand and bless not curse, and like Jesus to bear long with the infirmities of others, not accuse.

Description: Gareth Evans shares many testimonies of revival experiences in his life. And it culminates in the passionate plea to God "show me your glory." This is the hunger that all true christians yearn for ultimately. God has a place of glory and overcoming life in the spirit filled holy life.

Do Everything Out Of Love by Arno Stegen

<https://www.sermonindex.net/modules/mydownloads/singlefile.php?lid=16484&commentView=itemComments>

Scripture(s): 1 Corinthians 16:14

Description: Arno Stegen shares his sermon on the topic of having the love of God in our lives. He speaks of many practical ways to show if we do nor do not have the love of God in our heart. All ministry, work, and serving God can be vain without it being done out of love from the heart for God. This is a very challenging and strong sermon on a much needed topic to be shared.
