in the Days of Noah, it was an evil generation before God. Now, we are in the 21st century and we have an "internet" that can be access by anyone, and there are grievous unimaginable wicked things inside it... Did this generation beats the Days of Noah a billionfold?

No. Its not even close. Read the text again. There was only a few God fearing people left on the earth at all in Noah's day. They are multiplied millions and millions of true followers of Christ in the earth today.

One indian missionary told me many years ago without any knowledge of the internet much, he felt it was a "tower of babel" being erected.

He might be right.

Statistics say there are 2 billion or so christians in the world. I don't believe that for a second. Is every third person you meet a born again lover of Christ? I personally would put the number at something like 50 million true christians in the world.

I heard something like 90 percent of internet searches are for pornography.

That being said, I do believe the internet can be used in powerful ways by God (just look at this website, for example).
