

~Other Speakers A-F: Dan Biser:

"My beloved spake, and said unto me, Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away."

A very personal and rich verse for each of His children. My Beloved spake and said unto me - I pray that you are able to call Him, 'Your Beloved'; You cannot say it, if you do not mean it nor if you do not know Him. 'If you love Me, you will keep My commandments.' Yea, this is the test for each of us. Our obedience shows our love for Him. And if you do not obey Him, then you do not love Him. But to the soul that knows, 'there is no good thing in my flesh'; but there is Divine life and light in Christ Jesus, they will run to Him for compassion and forgiveness. And He, Who is merciful and gracious will show Himself in each of these. Oh, 'my Beloved spake', what did He say? Do you have an ear to hear what HE says? I feel many in the church today, speak to Him, but they never hear from Him. Can this in any way shape or form be considered healthy spiritual communication? His words are truth; His words are pure; His words are right; His words are for our edification.

such a personal note is found in this short phrase. 'My beloved. . . speaking unto me'. IT is a one to one conversation. Very personal, very intimate. And how needful is this relationship for each of us to have. We must be alone with God for such seasons of hearing and speaking to each other. 'Alone with God will make one wholly for God' said Andrew Murray. It would do us well that when we are alone with God to often consider what He has already said to us through the Scriptures. Know the Word. And train yourself to hear what He speaks, and to know His voice.

Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away - word study - come;
