

Devotional Thoughts :: Come, My Brethren, Let Us Unite Our Forces -smith*Come, My Brethren, Let Us Unite Our Forces -smith - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2006/9/29 17:38*Come, My Brethren, Let Us Unite Our Forcesby Oswald J. Smith*

Sectarianism, the lack of Christian love, the worldliness— these things are blasting the work of God on every side. Oh, that God would enable us to confess our sins of criticism and gossip; bitterness, hatred and backbiting; jealousy and spiritual pride, sectarian prejudice and aloofness— in a word, confess our lack of Christian love, the greatest of all sins, and together unite in earnest, travailing prayer for a mighty, sweeping revival!

It is to this I would call the people of God, for I am persuaded that the hour has struck. It is for this I would plead. Come, my brethren, come, let us unite our forces, our prayers, our aims, and no longer keep the Christless masses from the salvation that God longs to send, and the Church from the revival He waits to give!

Re: Come, My Brethren, Let Us Unite Our Forces -smith - posted by kdbutton, on: 2006/9/29 21:18

Specifically Father, unite your church of upstate NY, from Greece, NY to Waterloo, NY and from Williamson NY to Gorham NY and every little community in between, unite our forces, as Brother O. Smith has said, unite our prayers, our aims, that no longer the Christless masses be kept from the salvation that You long to send, and the Church from the revival You wait to give!

Even now, let it begin, and so get glory, in Jesus' name, Amen