Quote:

 -----"In praising and thanking the Lord." Yea, you have their very words: "For He is good; for His mercy endureth forever." It was thus th e people were engaged when the cloud came down and filled the house. They had been engaged in many other most affecting duties. The Levites ha d been carrying the ark from Mount Zion and placing it under the wings of the Cherubim; Solomon and all his people had been offering sacrifices, shee p and oxen, which could not be told for multitude - still no answer came from heaven. But when the trumpeters and singers were as one praising and t hanking the Lord, when they lifted up their voices, saying; "For he is good; for His mercy endureth forever" - then the windows of heaven were opened
 - then the cloud came down and filled the whole temple. My dear flock, I am deeply persuaded that there will be no full, soul-filling, heart-ravishing, hea rt-satisfying, outpouring of the Spirit of God till there be more praise and thanking the Lord, let me stir up your hearts to praise." -Robert Murray McChe
