That's exciting brother Greg.

Do you plan on having the video online after it has already taken place live as well, in case we can't be at the screen to watch it "live"?

Edit Found the answer on the Revival Conference website :-)

Brother,

yes the audio and video will be avialbe as free downloads on the revivalconference.com website as well as sermonindex .net, chrisitan.tv, godsipod.com and many other media download websites. My prayer is the the materials over the upco ming year will be downloaded over 100,000+ times. May the church nation-wide grasp a burden for true genuine revival i n our day.

Someone asked this question in another thread that was applicable to this one:

Quote:
-----Is the church really this big?

The picture used in that image is not the actual church. The church that is used for the event will seat 800 people and th ere are 2 other churches that are opening the doors to the conference locally one that seats 1200 people and one that s eats 2000+ people. So possibly if we need to use the 2000+ seating church it could look very similar to the image used a bove.

There has been significant progress with the live webcast.

You can view the page where the live webcast can be accessed here:

Live Webcast

<http://www.christian.tv/index.php?module=ctv&action=channel&cid=41>

There is a podcast, book resources, vintage audio, and times and links for "all" the webcasted sessions of the conference.

The conference will be featured on the front page of www.christian.tv when the event is live also for easy access. There will also be provided a HIGHER QUALITY video stream for churches that want to broadcast the event in their churches. You can contact me about getting your church on that list here: sermonindex@gmail.com

There are already over 10+ churches utilizing this "higher" quality webstream for the event. More details will be posted on both the live webcast and simulcast for churches.
