Mohler on CNN: U.S. awash in porn

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (BP)--America is saturated with sexual immorality, and the only solution is submitting to God's standards for sexuality, R. Albert Mohler Jr. told a CNN audience on Aug. 20.

"There is clearly a nation awash with pornography right now, and evangelical Christians are certainly concerned about that," Mohler said on the cable network's "God, Sex and Greed" special. "It's a sign of a culture that is increasingly seeking gratification in all the wrong places. And pornography ... is a very glaring and graphic symptom of the problem we face in this country."

Mohler, president of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., appeared in the opening segment of the hour-long program with author and media personality Rabbi Shmuley Boteach and Irshad Manji, author of "The Trouble with Islam Today." Hosted by Roland Martin, the program focused on America's simultaneous fascinations
