Looking for women's devotional/Bible study resources

My mother is going to start holding a bible study for 3 or 4 young women shortly. They are between the ages of 14-18. She wanted to know if I had any ideas on devotional material and/or if I had heard of any other resources she might be able to use. I told her I didn't personally know of any but I knew some ladies on SI that might. :-)

Any and all advice is appreciated.

Thanks in advance.

Nancy Leigh DeMoss has some excellent material for women, www.reviveourhearts.com

I haven't personally done any of her Bible studies but I've heard that the (<http://store.reviveourhearts.com/seekinghimworkbook.aspx>) Seeking Him Study is really good.

For young ladies, Nancy's book, Lies Young Women Believe might be really good for a Bible study for girls in the 13-18 age frame, especially if they're part of more mainstream Christianity.

Hope that helps!

Beth Moore has some excellent resources. In her WorkBooks. I did "Breaking Free" and it was really good. They will have some homework each night but they will get into the word.

As will they if they do any of Kay Arthur's studies. I have one friend who just loves her. Your mother's new Christian friends wouldn't want to do this one but my friend is doing a year long study on the book of Revelation. Their church is doing it and it is intense!

Thank you Joy

I know Mother enjoys Nancy Leigh DeMoss. I will pass these on.

I'm with Joy on this one. Anything from Nancy DeMoss (Revive Our Hearts) "Lies Young Women Believe" was the first thing that came to my mind :)

Also (<http://www.setapartgirl.com/home.html>) Leslie Ludy's
(http://store.setapartlife.com/Authentic_Beauty_p/book-ab.htm) Authentic Beauty is fantastic!
