The Sovereignty of God by A.W. Pink would be my suggestion. It's a classic.

I have "Chosen By God", but haven't finished it. I heard a lot of people recommending it, but I just wasn't able to get into it at the time. I have A.W. Pink's "Sovereignty" book on my list, but haven't gotten to it yet. I did read that a later publishing of Pink's book leaves out a section (I think its on "limited atonement") that the early copies had in them. You might want to check into that before buying a copy of his book.

My vote is DEFINITELY Pink's book. The one with a crown on the front is complete.

A. W. Pink's book is solely about the glory, majesty, sovereignty, and wonder of AlMighty GOD. R.C. Sproul's book deals with our calling and election to be disciples and followers and servants of the LORD.

i was also recommended a book called God and evil by gordon clark, supposedly the author is one of the first to finally answer the question right and he uses the scripture to show us. Thank you savannah
