

Miracles that follow the plow :: Pride from within me....

Pride from within me.... - posted by rreighe (), on: 2009/4/28 22:59 i never noticed it but i was really proud. i was really stuck up. i thought i was something. i faked being humble by saying the right words. but that was all they were to me; words.

but the last few months were just terrible. and i couldn't figure out why everything was falling apart. i mean here i was being a jerk and whenever i tried to talk to someone about God i would offend them and sound like i thought i was better than them.

then i got grounded from Church on wed (dont ask, long story) and then i realized that my relation with a few of my friends were deteriorating (sorry i cannot spell right now) and while all of that was happening i wasn't visiting this site that much, then i just randomly check it and someone sent me a message about how condescending i sounded on a few of my posts on the threads.... that did upset me... but if it didn't upset me then it never would have hit me.

later on that night when i was praying i was asking for God to revile to me all of the mess from within me. and i just knew ... i was so stuck up. WAY to stuck up. i thought i was really really good at composing and ect. and i thought i knew enough about the bible to make it through, and it turns out that i was too concerned with the end times and not the love Jesus has for us.

so now i am praying for God to help humble me and show me when i am acting and being stuck up. and it is working! praise JESUS!

NOW I CAN FEEL HIS PRESENCE IN CHURCH AGAIN!

praise the amazing God we have!

in the name we all really love to say; JESUS!
---allan

ps i wont post on here as much because i am really busy...

Re: Pride from within me.... - posted by johneybonds (), on: 2009/4/29 7:32

A hint of pride does a lot of damage, and unless you die daily to this monster, it will be back.