SermonIndex On A New Server! - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2009/5/24 4:20

Saints,

After 3 days of some stress, anxiety, not trusting the Lord. Things finally came together for me to upgrade the site to a new server. Well its on the new server now and seems to be working better then before. This does mean it will cost more to run the site but it is great to have it more stable and faster running.

It is amazing how the Lord is so longsuffering with us desiring us to learn eternal lessons from every carnal worldly decision we make. Thank you God for teaching through even this difficulty to trust you more.

The most important thing saints is "our life before God" on that judgment day. Ministry, Marriage, Money and everything else given to us in this life is to test us for the life to come.

... stress, anxiety, not trusting the Lord

How many of us could not say the same ...

Thought there was something ironic or rather thought provoking clicking on the home page and being met with -

The site is 'snappy' now, everything loads fast -

About that cost, hope this isn't lost on us saints. Greg, I know this has often been a struggle and something downplayed over the years but is there a means in place to help with these necessities? Is the PayPal setup still available, buried somewhere?

When the site loaded this morning thanksgiving to our awesome God flooded my heart. It is so good to see the site again. :)

That is so true. Praise God for His faithfulness and patience in His dealings with His children.

Always good to come through a testing period. It gives us an opportunity in the future to be able to look back and say "Once again the Lord was faithful." Glad your back.....Frank

Greg,

I looked for that paypal link and couldn't find it. Is the only way to support this site by

If so, I will call.

God bless you and this site brother! I did miss it the four days (seemed like two weeks!!)
