Christian churches in Canada fading out: USA next?

Olympics fans heading to Vancouver might want to visit a vanishing cultural treasure while they're in Canada -- local churches.

Canada has become a "post-Christian society" where once-dominant Anglicanism has "moved to the margins of public life," according to a bleak study reported by Michael Valpy at the Globe and Mail.

A new assessment of the state of the church in Canada looks at the Anglican Diocese of British Columbia and then across the country and concludes that,

Sorry to sound passive about this, but this isn't really news.

Not that it doesn't sadden to read it. It seems to be all over the western churches right now. They don't really mind whether their people perish or not. It's not their problem.

Matthew 17v21, 'However, this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting.'

If anyone has a better reply than that, let me know.

God bless.
