The Christian community continues to be targets of anti-Christian violence in the African nation of Somalia. The home of increasing amounts of piracy on the seas, the home-grown terrorism from al Shabaab continues to be a source of concern for Christians there.

Greg Musselman with Voice of the Martyrs, Canada says 21 year old Hassan Adawe Adan was gunned down by two Muslim extremists connected to the terrorist group. "He had converted from Islam to Christianity several months ago. And it was found out that he was a Christian. He was dragged out of his house, and he was shot and killed." ...

Father forgive them!

Re: , on: 2011/4/26 15:09

We need to pray that this saint's martyrdom will not be in vain and the gospel goes forth in Somalia to bring light to that darkened country. The fact that this young man left a terrorist group to find Christ signifies that the gospel is penetrating the horn of Africa. Come and pray. Let us pray for Eritrea where believers are being shipped in containers. Let us pray for Ethiopia where believers are persecuted by the Muslims and the orthodox church. Let the horn of Africa become the horn of salvation. Does anyone see fault with this? Am I wrong to call out prayer for the lost? Am I wrong to weep for the persecuted? Will somebody have the courage to say Blaine you are wrong to care for the persecuted believers and pray for them and weep.

Don't you believe in the sovereignty of God, martyr?

Re: Drar unto, on: 2011/4/26 16:29

Sorry I don't understand your question. Also I spogoze for my unbridled Passion. I am afraid that I get as passionate for the persecuted as some do for the KJV.

Re: Dear Unto,, on: 2011/4/26 16:45

Still puzzled by your question. If you mean do I believe that this saint's martyrdom was in God's sovereign will then yes because if anyone goes into captivity then into captivity he will go. If anyone is to be killed with the sword then with the sword he will be killed. But if sovereignty omits not praying for God to work among the persecuted then no I do not hold to that. If I did then I would shut down our con call for the persecuted .. But I cannot answer your question clearly until you amplify it.

No friend, I liked your post and thought it was in the sovereignty of God that you would by what you called a mistake, post it several times, because it needs to be read several times, till it hits home. We need to have the persecuted teach us the lesson of the cross. I appreciate your ministry and pray many will become more aware of the need to pray that the Lord may have mercy on us when persecution reach this land and raise others to pray for us.

My friend the entry that posted several times was from my end's mistake bit from God's perspective???? You may be right. May we have the humility to learn from the persecuted. May we pray for the persecuted in Somalia. Please come on our call and pray with us. Check my profile under Martyr. You will see an email address. Send me an email and I will give you the contact info.
