

General Topics :: Leonard ravenhill's thoughts on the rapture

Leonard ravenhill's thoughts on the rapture - posted by MityDisciple (), on: 2011/5/14 6:17 does anyone know his thoughts on this and if there is any sermons that he would be preaching on this subject.

Re: Leonard ravenhill's thoughts on the rapture - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2011/5/14 11:49

Hello,

In my mind he was very much non-conformist on many of the popular doctrines of the day. I have not heard him 100% oppose the doctrine theologically but he would give many statements such as:

Leonard Ravenhill: "There is a cowardly Christianity which...still comforts its fainting heart with the hope that there will be a rapture - perhaps today - to catch us away from coming tribulation" (Sodom Had No Bible, p. 94).

Or to indict the church he would say: "The church today wants to sit back, relax and be raptured."

Or: "today we want to be raptured from responsibility."

He saw the rapture as not a propelling doctrine for obedience and Christ-likeness but something that he thought added to the spiritual decline of the church of North America.