

Devotional Thoughts :: poem: wildflowers in the wilderness poem: wildflowers in the wilderness - posted by tbsounde2 (), on: 2011/11/4 16:10 walking alone in the desert i grew weary with thirst my heart longing and searching to find just something of worth how did i get here and why again i start to ask the former joys and pleasure appear as a facade and a mask the desolate landscape now mocking me with fear and doubt thunder rolling in the distance but the land remaining in drought and so i walked onward through this barren wasteland with no one to talk to or to lend a helping hand and as i began to ponder on upon these things i was reminded of the faithfulness of my King that even though this place is cold and relentless i realizedÂ...

i had all but forgotten that there are wildflowers to be seen in the wilderness