An evangelist was shot dead here on Wednesday (Nov. 16) by an unidentified gunman in what his family believes was a radical Muslim group's targeting of a Christian.

Zahid Jameel, 25, told Compass that his father, Jameel Saawan, and a helper were opening the doors of their cosmetics shop in the Gulshan-e-Iqbal area of Pakistan's commercial hub of Karachi on Wednesday morning when a young man appeared and shot his father, first in the neck and then in the face.

Marvel not brethren that the world hate you.

They call them a Radical Muslim group, all Muslims are radical when it comes to their beliefs. It's the Western lie that tells us that not all Muslims are radical, most are peaceful and loving. If they love Islam and their Koran, they will hate you and I even to death.

I hope and pray that this Evangelist who died, that the fruit of his labour will not be in vain, that many will rise up in his place to carry on the work of the ministry. God bless you brother and your stand for the truth, you're in a far better place where we all desire to be right now.
