

News and Current Events :: Phoenix man fined $12k for hosting Bible Studies in home

Phoenix man fined $12k for hosting Bible Studies in home - posted by dvndsn, on: 2012/7/10 17:42

<http://www.cbn.com/cbnnews/us/2012/July/Phoenix-Man-Faces-Jail-Time-for-Home-Bible-Studies/>

I'm not sure if I have all the details, but this seems wrong just by what this article says. The law sees a "church" as a 501c3 building. Scripture sees "church" as the people themselves.

Re: Phoenix man fined $12k for hosting Bible Studies in home, on: 2012/7/10 17:53

There us another thread running in this same story where more info is being brought out. This story us not as it appears . Check out the other thread.

Bearmaster.

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2012/7/10 17:57

Here is the thread mentioned: https://www.sermonindex.net/modules/newbb/viewtopic.php?topic_id=45657&forum=48&10 and here is my comment on that thread:

It is bad that there is such opposition already coming to the idea of anyone running a religious service on their private property. But this individual has a large church sign and cross in a residential area on the front of his property so it is a far cry from a bible study or home church.

But the time will be coming when even private home gatherings in basements will be illegal and not allowed.