It appears to be something that is happening on all the gospelcom sites so it means that they might have to reboot the sql server that is hosting some of the gospelcom websites. In light of this I would bring to your attention this article by Mike to help you remind yourself to copy and save your posts before pressing submit just incase an error message happens and you lose your information:

Hi, this problem was not just sermonindex.net but all gospelcom.net hosted sites. I just got this message about the problem:

Quote:

-----Hello,

We're currently experiencing a problem with all Gospelcom.net hosted sites that is intermittently causing PHP safe_mode and include error messages to show up on your sites. We are aware of this issue and we are working diligently to solve it. We'll send another message when we have this issue resolved.

Thanks,
Brian

And some good news that it is FIXED!! I just recieved this note below:

Quote:

-----Hello,

We have resolved the issue with intermittent PHP safe_mode and include error messages being shown on your sites. We apologize for the interruptions this has caused.

Thanks,
Brian
