

Devotional Thoughts :: An ode to my wife (and Godly marriage)*An ode to my wife (and Godly marriage), on: 2012/12/5 13:30

I would run a million miles
Just to see your face
And I would climb the highest peak
Just for one embrace

I loved you from the very start
When you fell right into my heart
And became a very part of me
No longer " you and I," but "we"

And in this world that now is one
This cloth of life that we have spun
We stand together face to face
We stand as one in time and space

And I would gladly die for you
For we are one our hearts are true
For when you hurt I feel it sore
And I would have you hurt no more

And in my mind I cannot see
A day when you're not part of me
For God Himself put us together
And what He makes it lasts forever

We have walked through trial and flood
And witnessed desert blooms that bud
Though vibrant valley's, mountains too
And years where days of joy were few

Yet Gods creation perseveres
Through all these days and all these years
Refined by fires and shining bright
Humbled by years and more contrite

This love for you will never end
My wife my lover and my friend
And so forever and a day
We shall be one until we pass away

Re: An ode to my wife (and Godly marriage), on: 2012/12/5 16:03

beautiful.

Re: An ode to my wife (and Godly marriage) - posted by ccchhhrrriiiss (), on: 2012/12/5 16:12

I agree: This is beautiful! I will read it to my wife tonight!

:~)

Re: , on: 2012/12/5 17:40

Thank you guys,

I had been meaning to write that for a while, and my wife loved it which is good :) .....bro Frank