U.S. city looks to penalize Bible believers - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2013/7/25 11:33

Think it's hot in Texas these days? Just wait a few weeks, until the San Antonio City Council ends its summer hiatus and resumes work on a proposed change to its nondiscrimination ordinances that apparently will discriminate against all who take the Bible at its word and follow it.

That's because the change creates a penalty for those who ever exhibit a "bias," which clearly could include adopting the Bible's condemnation of homosexuality, with a permanent ban on participation in city government, business or employment.

Opponents of the plan, which would add "sexual orientation" and "gender identity" to the nondiscrimination ordinances, charge it is a violation of constitutional Article VI, paragraph 3, which states, "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States" ...
