its coming, thanks to the demonic sociopaths, both Dem and Repub's we have in DC.....this just came across the wire:

"Russia Responds To US Warning: Expands Military Presence Globally"

Shortly after the US warned Russia over its "provocative actions" with regard Ukraine...

â€¢*KERRY: RUSSIA MILITARY MOVE ON UKRAINE WOULD BE GRAVE MISTAKE

RiaNovosti reports defense minister Sergei Shoigu saying Russia plans "to expand permanent military presence outside its borders by placing military bases in a number of foreign countries," including Vietnam, Cuba, Venezuela, Nicaragua, the Seychelles, and Singapore. "The talks are under way, and we are close to signing the relevant documents," Shoigu told reporters in Moscow.

Via RiaNovosti,

Russia is planning to expand its permanent military presence outside its borders by placing military bases in a number of foreign countries, Defense Minister Sergei Shoigu said Wednesday.

Shoigu said the list includes Vietnam, Cuba, Venezuela, Nicaragua, the Seychelles, Singapore and several other countries.

â€¢The talks are under way, and we are close to signing the relevant documents,â€¢ Shoigu told reporters in Moscow.

The minister added that the negotiations cover not only military bases but also visits to ports in such countries on favorable conditions as well as the opening of refueling sites for Russian strategic bombers on patrol.

Moscow currently has only one naval base outside the former Soviet Union â€" in Tartus, Syria, but the fate of this naval facility is uncertain because of the ongoing civil war in that country.

Post-Soviet Russia closed a large naval base in Vietnam and a radar base in Cuba in 2002 due to financial constraints.

However, Russia has started reviving its navy and strategic aviation since mid-2000s, seeing them as a tool to project the Russian image abroad and to protect national interests around the globe.

Now, Moscow needs to place such military assets in strategically important regions of the world to make them work effectively.

tively toward the goal of expanding Russia's global influence.

Russia responds to American threats mostly with laughter. Yes America has sophisticated weapons of war, but with neither an intelligent moral resolve nor a salient foreign policy how are these things of any righteous use?

Putin plays Barak Obama like a cheap violin. This is so awful to watch.

i read Russia warships are docked in Havana. gives one a moment to pause. i agree the president is not handling things at all well and neither is anyone else. perhaps these events are a punishment for turning our backs on God as a nation or perhaps they are an act of mercy to get us to "wake up" and see what really matters, Jesus and His Kingdom. i know for me on a personal level it can be easy to look to these kinds of things and get caught up in them but this morning as i pray i really do have a peace in my heart from Him. the world will carry on as it does and i know God is in control of these events so i am learning to pray "YOUR WILL OH LORD, BE DONE!" and trust in Him.

interesting and eyeopening to be sure

Listen to this guy. Once you get past his traffic ticket, he will give you a great history lesson that most people don't know about. "My people perish for lack of knowledge". What he teaches you is the basis for all this upheaval with economies and politics in this world.

Neil, your title reminded me what the Anabaptists did when the Black Plague marched across Europe, killing many.

In order to not bother others they were told to dig graves for themselves when they believed themselves to be at death's door. They were to lie down in their grave - that way they did not impose upon others - and die there. I do not know how often this was done but this advice was given.

Have a good day! Enjoying your snow?

It's none of our business what happens over there. If Ukraine goes to war with anybody for any reason, let them hash it out. US involvement would be a sin.

Re: , on: 2014/3/1 1:29

This United States is in its fourth (4th) bankruptcy as a nation.

1. The first (1st) bankruptcy was officially declared in 1791. This was a time of many changes in America. Perhaps most notable of these, was the signing of the Bill Of Rights representing the first ten amendments to and the final passing of the Constitution for the United States, which happened December 15th of that year, shortly after our first bankruptcy. This is of course significant as our God given rights are solely dependent on this document, though they were generally accepted common law rights throughout the world long before America existed.

During each bankruptcy, a war is fought (the revolutionary war in this case) and a new form of currency is always established, since the old one becomes essentially worthless in the new corporate re-structure of each bankruptcy. With the new country, came new money. Several monetary systems were proposed for the early Republic of America. Congress approved the first dollar on August 8, 1786. Once passage of the U.S. Constitution was secured, and the 1st bankruptcy and restructuring was in motion, the secretary of the treasury Alexander Hamilton turned the government's attention to monetary issues once again in the early 1790's. On Hamilton's recommendations, Congress passed the Coinage Act of 1792, which established the dollar as the basic unit of accounting for the United States. At this point, the dollar was still backed by gold.

2. The second (2nd) bankruptcy took place exactly 70 years later, in 1861. The main reason for this is that the restructuring that takes place in a bankruptcy can by law only last for 70 years without being settled. And so in 1861, the country was declared bankrupt once again. Of course there was much more to this planned event in history. As carpetbaggers claimed and stole the land of southern property owners, and the banks and governments bought up land and farmland for pennies on the dollar, the civil war broke out in this year when the southern states began to say no to the northern government and these carpetbaggers. This is often referred to (by southern states especially) as the War Of Northern Aggression. And most southerners will also say that there was certainly nothing civil about the Civil War! And this was quite true when considering that the government is housed in the north (British Columbia and Washington D.C.) and that their aggression was the takeover and corporate restructuring of America. This was not a war over slavery to be sure, and the assassination of Abraham Lincoln happened only after his attempt to depose the central banking structure and establish greenbacks: congressionally printed and controlled money. But in 1863 during the American Civil War, the National Banking Act was passed. This act and its later amended versions essentially taxed states' bonds and currency out of existence. And so through corporate government legislation in the newly reorganized country, the dollar became the sole currency of the United States (which was still backed by metals then) and remains so in an altered (and worthless) form today.

3. And now we come to the third (3rd) bankruptcy in our country's history, which was 70 years later in 1931. This was the big one. This was the time after the industrial revolution, when population, lawful immigration, jobs, and opportunity were in abundance. The money system was still in real money; meaning trade was done in precious metals like gold and silver coins. Even the paper money was backed by and redeemable for gold and silver at its face value. But, as the anticipated bankruptcy loomed closer and closer, steps were taken by the government to ensure that a new restructuring of the country could take place, ensuring the same bankers and corporate crooks would remain in power. The stock market was deliberately crashed, and the great depression ensued. The population was broke, and their land and property was once again bought for pennies on the dollar by the banks and newly reorganized government. Transfer of wealth is the name of the game, and a new game is played every 70 years.

But during 1933 and 1938, as the reorganization of our government and finance laws took place after most small banks were deliberately collapsed and fell into the holdings of the larger banks, a very important thing happened that changed the landscape of our nation: the gold standard was removed and replaced by the Federal Reserve Note (dollar). The House of Representatives accomplished this when they passed House Joint Resolution 192. This new legislature actually outlawed the use of real money (gold and silver) to pay a debt, actually making it illegal to require real money to pay for a debt. The dollar (now called the Federal Reserve Note) became "legal tender" and was backed by the supposed full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. However, this paper money or fiat currency was in fact worthless due to the absence of real money backing its value.

The dollar is nothing more than an IOU, and only has value if both parties in an exchange verbally or contractually accept it as payment for goods and services while remaining under the illusion (or blind faith) that the government or institution which issues this paper has the power, wealth, and credit to back up this currency. In fact, a few years after this third res tructure of the U.S, the government mandated the confiscation of all gold from its citizens and the transfer of land, property and real wealth was accomplished yet again. Many people say that World War II is what seemingly brought the U.S out of the great depression. In fact, many people recognize that in the past America usually prospers in times of war and shortly thereafter.

4. Flash forward another 70 years it's now 2001. People are prospering. Goods and services are in abundance. The world was at peace (excepting the military black ops and economic hit man type of destabilization of many countries for strategic and natural resource confiscation). Now any good conspiracy buff might note the interesting and overwhelming coincidence in this being the year of the 4th restructuring of our corporate government. Indeed, one might be even more aghast when one realizes that the anniversary of the last bankruptcy from 70 years ago was in fact September 10, 1931, or the day before the destruction of the World Trade Center buildings 1,2, and 7 along with the supposed attack on the Pentagon on September 11, 2001. War is both a great distraction and a profitable venture for the corporate world governments, and this obviously isn't the first time war or false flag events have been used in this manner, as a tool for the restructuring of the U.S. government. And we have watched over the last nine years as the dollar crashed, as the real estate and property bubbles burst and are once again being taken over by our government and banks (in a typical transfer of wealth), a complete corporate takeover of the country which started about 70 years ago with the introduction of the CAFR system which is now culminating into the nation being completely owned through collective investment by the government owned corporations we are about to see the dollar become completely worthless right before our eyes (if it isn't already) and a new form of U.S. currency or world bank currency will likely take its place right on schedule!

This is the real U.S. history that isn't in your textbooks.

Jdg 16:20

And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the LORD was departed from him.

I believe Samsons' story is in many ways America's story, however our lands will be free from Russian invasion, China on the other hand may be a different story. It is so difficult to "Really" know why certain governments do what they do, Russia as far as the end-times events is concerned will be nothing more than the instrument God uses to bring His purposes to pass in the middle east.

And the Moslems have invaded America too.

Could that be what initiates the persecution that so many intune brothers seem to be warning us of ?

A refusal by a small remnant to make the transition to a implanted cashless society ?

"What if tomorrow morning you got the daily newspaper and on the front page of the daily newspaper you saw these words written across there: "cashless society, all peoples have two months to make the transition to cashless society".

Oh, it would be presented so beautifully, so nicely and so wonderfully and inviting to all of us:

'That it's so much easier to deal with all the terrorist and all of those things, that if we just went with a cashless society, and you do not need a credit card anymore. And all you need to do is, get a little mark in your wrist in your hand and maybe one on your forehead and everything is going to be alright and you got two months to transition into this cashless society'.

Dear proudpapa,

Deception has been foisted upon all of us and you will be absolutely astounded at those godly men you highly respect that easily accept the mark of the beast.

I will post this link again, compliments of Roadsign.

Excerpt from letter #2

The wicked Witch of the East is called Russia. The wicked Witch of the West is called China. Part of the trick is that the wizards want these witches to be feared, but they still help them to be big and strong. That's different from Oz who wanted the wicked witches to be destroyed so the people would be safe.

Both Russia and China are green and beautiful countries just like America, with all the good things needed to be happy. They each have their own games of Wizard going. Theirs is played almost exactly like ours. They think America is the wicked witch. Sometimes America is a wicked witch.

To play Wizards of America you must have glasses like the ones Oz gave to all his people. But they don't make everything look green like in the Emerald City. These glasses make everything in America seem to be very nice and good, with liberty and justice for all, just like in the pledge of allegiance. Making people say the pledge over and over again when they are children helps them to pretend everything is just fine when it isn't. The pledge of Allegiance is the first big trick grownups play on children.

Liberty means that as long as you don't hurt anyone, no one can tell you what to do. Justice means that if you do hurt someone you must make it right. You may even be punished. Liberty and justice means that as long as you're doing good and not evil, no one can tell you what to do, not even humbugs.

Of course you can't play Wizards of America and have liberty and justice, too. Wizards wouldn't be wizards if citizens didn't do as they were told. So part of the trick is to make everything look like liberty and justice in America, when it really is the same as all the other countries, like Russia and China.

Now you know some of the tricks grownups play on children and why they do it. Humbugs of America and humbugs of Russia and humbugs of all the other countries don't ever want to stop playing. For wizards it is a very exciting and fun game. And they get lots of money, too. But it is a very dangerous game and many people are hurt. Many are even killed.

Many of my friends were hurt and killed when we played wizards in a far away country called Viet Nam. I played captain, others played sergeant, major, general, and lots more. The people of that country are short and speak a funny language. They are very friendly. Many of them were hurt or killed, too. It makes me very sad when I think of what we did. Sometimes I can't help crying when I remember. That's one reason why I have quit playing. It is a very bad game. I hope you never start playing. Grownups who still play make-believe are sick and should see a doctor. Their minds are not well.

Next time, I'll tell you what I decided to do instead of playing Wizards of America. Maybe you will want to do it, too. Bye for now!
