

Articles and Sermons :: Sexual Idolatry*Sexual Idolatry - posted by ArthurRosh, on: 2014/12/27 11:26

Augustine famously prayed, "Our hearts are restless until they rest in You." True indeed. Being creatures, we inherently sense our ontological poverty—our innate condition of dependence—and are compelled to find a sense of security. And it is also true—as Augustine's own narrative painfully illustrates—that one of the things we most naturally gravitate toward as a substitute for God is a sexual relationship. The tendency to make an idol of sex isn't simply a feature of a decadent American culture, or even of the West more broadly. An idolatrous fixation on sexual union has been a staple in human depravity for as far back as our collective memory will take us. In this brief post I offer a few preliminary thoughts on why sexual sin is so often the sin of choice, and why sexual sin is uniquely destructive to our humanity.

<http://trinityhouseinstitute.com/sexual-idolatry/>

Re: Sexual Idolatry - posted by Lysa (), on: 2014/12/27 17:31

I read this at work and came home to read it again and guess what? It is gone! It was a very good article too...

Re: new address - posted by Jeremy221, on: 2014/12/27 20:54

They changed their server/organizational name.

<http://theopolisinstitute.com/sexual-idolatry/>