Hindu Extremists Threaten to 'Cut Christians Into Pieces' If They Continue to Worship Christ - posted by sermonindex

Hindu radicals in India have intensified their threats, forced conversions and persecution of Christians, saying they would cut them "into pieces" if they continue to worship Christ. Such threats have already forced at least 10 Christian families in a northwest province to flee from their homes and villages.

Church leaders told the Christian persecution watchdog Morning Star News that the 10 families fled from their homes in the Indian state of Rajasthan, which shares a border with Pakistan, because of death threats coming from Hindus seeking to turn Christians away from Christ and "reconvert" them to Hinduism.

The Hindu extremists have threatened to harm anyone who mentions Christ's name or participates in church functions. The threats have prevented Christians in the area from worshipping for over two months. ...

India as a country is being ruled by Hindu extremists called BJP. This kind of persecution is expected. Please remember Indian Christians in your prayers.

Recently even in news channels there are lots of concerns being raised by media on the increasing number of Christians in India. They see it as foreigners spreading their religion in India. They do not understand that Christianity came to India 2000 years back itself through Thomas. It is not a western religion to Indians.
