Christian or non-Christian, the MMR vaccine does not discriminate. Now, there is a movie about the CDC's cover-up of the MMR vaccine. If you are still having children or going to or know others who are, you may want to be aware of this.

(NaturalNews) There has never been an assault against a documentary film in the history of America like the one we've just witnessed over the last 48 hours. The entire mainstream media waged a coordinated, simultaneous attack against the Tribeca Film Festival to censor a film none of them had even seen.

That film, of course, is called VAXXED: From Cover-Up to Catastrophe, and it documents the admission of the CDC's Dr. William Thompson, who admitted taking part in a massive scientific fraud to conceal the truth about vaccines causing autism.

Having had a very rare reaction to a vaccination, (hospitalized 9 days) may I suggest "Vaccine Injury Compensation Program" on the web which is administered by the Federal Government as a resource for further information.

I am beginning to think one has to completely rethink one's dependence upon medicine.

Medicine is readily available in the USA. Folks will run to the doctor for any little pain or rash, not even giving nature a chance to heal the body.

And then there is God. And I am conflicted. At the moment we are on no meds....yes, we hurt and pain some, not bad but it slows us down. People are appalled with our lack of physical exams... Yet, I am of the belief that our health is in God's hands.

I am still conflicted. And the gov wants to impose meds upon its people....and I want to trust the LORD. But what about our grands? For us the gov will soon discover we are not worth the expense to treat if an emergency or need would arise.

Conflicted...

Ironically that on daytime television there are advertisements telling you the wonders of some super drug, and then saying, "Ask your doctor about it, to see if it may be right for you". Then on evening television advertisements come out asking you if you have been injured by such and such a drug, to call the law offices of XYZ.

America is the most overprescribed people on the face of the earth. People are conditioned to believe the "experts".
