Hindu Extremists Order All Christian Missionaries to Leave Nepal as Tensions Rise - posted by sermonindex (), on: 201

A group of Hindu extremists have reportedly warned all foreign Christian missionaries to leave Nepal, following a series of church attacks in recent weeks. Christians are being blamed for "corrupting the country," while a new Constitution bans people from converting others to their faith.

International Christian Concern reported on Tuesday that Morcha Nepal, a Hindu radical group, distributed leaflets in Nepal warning Christian missionaries to leave the country, despite the government declaring Nepal to be a secular state.

The leaflets read: "Foreign influence have manipulated government decisions" and "Christians have corrupted the country," according to a report in Fides News Agency.

The Fides report noted that sources have said that despite these warnings, "Christians continue their mission of dialogue and proclamation of the Gospel of charity toward all."

Charisma News reported that two churches in Nepal's easternmost Jhapa district were bombed on Sept. 14, only hours after Nepal's Constituent Assembly turned down calls to revert the country back into an officially Hindu state.
