Brennan Manning preaches on the lack of Christ in churches; where the Church has become a place of moralism and legalism, devoid of the Divine Fire that marinates the human soul, so that the Church becomes the Heavenly Expression of the Living Christ Himself. He talks about the difference between living under the law and living under the Spirit.

A very powerful sermon. He was like a Leonard Ravenhill, but from a different stream.

One of the quotes in the sermon:

"Perhaps the greatest danger in the Church today - more than all the heretics and secular humanists put together, is the boredom, the monotony, the tediousness of Christian preaching on Sunday morning focusing on morals and on doctrine!" -Brennan Manning
