

losing posts - posted by Gloryandgrace (), on: 2018/2/22 20:10

It has been my normal habit to highlight and hit copy on most every post I write, otherwise, I get "no forum selected" and it blows out my posting. So, I highlight and hit copy so when it does that, I come back to the same board and repost, then it takes it.

Is there a reason for tossing posts when I have clearly selected a discussion topic, thread, reply then posted?

By the way "Im highlighting, hitting copy" before submitting this post. LOL.

Re: losing posts - posted by davidkeel (), on: 2018/2/23 5:35

Maybe someone can help you but I'm not sure if you are doing your posts from a phone ? Where is your post when you are typing it, on the forums page or on a separate text editor before you are copying it ?

The web browser you are using could possibly make a difference too.

Re: Marvin - posted by MrBillPro (), on: 2018/2/23 9:33

I and old geek, and pretty much understand almost everything to some point, when it comes to computers and the internet, but you have totally lost me here. Maybe it's just the way you explained it, but I have no idea what your saying... :-)

Re: losing posts - posted by dspks, on: 2018/2/24 9:19

You must be using a PC...

MAC...

the only solution to any computer problem!

:)

Re: dspks - posted by MrBillPro (), on: 2018/2/24 19:36

Hey, some of us are working folks, we can't afford a Mac, one of those probably cost more than the car I'm driving. :-)

Re: losing posts - posted by Jeremy221, on: 2018/2/24 21:57

I don't have any technical info on this but I know that God has used similar experiences with SI to check my motivations when posting. Have you had the Spirit checking you or prompting you to post when this is happening?

Re: - posted by TrueWitness, on: 2018/2/25 8:55

I don't have the problem described and am having a hard time understanding why you are "hitting copy" in the first place. I assume "hitting copy" means either: holding down the Ctl and C keys at the same time Or using the mouse on the Edit pull-down menu and selecting Copy. Ok, so now your highlighted text is copied to the clipboard. Again, I don't know why you feel a need to do this, simply hitting the Submit button at the bottom of your post window Should post your submission into the thread. People only Copy something that they later want to Paste into something else and yet you never say anything about Pasting your Copy. Strange....

-Daniel

Re: - posted by Gloryandgrace (), on: 2018/2/26 16:25

Hi Truewitness: I highlight and copy so I am ready to re-submit when a post gets lost "no discussion room selected" comes up. I then go back into the room, find the thread and re-post by pasting what I wrote.

by hitting copy I highlight, then it's a right click then select copy so I can resubmit a post.

Re: - posted by Gloryandgrace (), on: 2018/2/26 16:30

Hi Jeremy: I have at times interpreted my lost post as 'not meant to be read', but overall I don't suspect God is stopping me from submitting my thoughts.

I've also written posts that I believed were inspired by the Holy Spirit and were lost, for those I attempt to re-write my post again (and I will highlight and copy it too) so I can get it submitted if I need to paste it in.

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2018/2/26 21:26

Quote:

-----Is there a reason for tossing posts when I have clearly selected a discussion topic, thread, reply then posted?

If you are using a mobile device that could be a possibility why it is not working, what device are you using.

You are doing right to copy any large post before you press submit, as anything can happen even by accident!

I have not been able to re-create the error but do let us know what device and or browser you are posting from.

Re: Marvin - posted by MrBillPro (), on: 2018/2/26 22:23

I still don't "quite" understand your explanation of your issue, but moving on, what not use a word processor "MS Word" or etc. to write your message, then copy and paste it in the forum of your choice. I'm guessing you're signed in when you try to paste your post in the thread.

Re: Visible/invisible posts - posted by Jeremy221, on: 2018/2/26 23:22

Greg, I'm getting different issues on iOS. I posted a thread in Articles and Sermons but when I reloaded the site it didn't show up on the main page. When I logged in, then it showed up. Maybe there's a bigger glitch going on.