Dear saints,

After resisting any changes for the Sermonindex site for quite a few years there was a need to update the logo and the color and look of the website. Perhaps over the last few years a brownish tint has entered into alot of designs done on the site. Now we are back to more of a clear green color for featured items.

This will still be fine tuned and other site changes will happen that will not be as extreme.

Please provide feedback ideas. Things you would like implimented or changed.

The same re-branding has happened on our social sites where featured quotes and videos will be shared on abit of a more consistent basis, get invovled in sharing the content and being a blessing for others that way:

Looking forward to any comments and ideas we slowly move forward.

Thanks for this Greg. It looks very nice. There's been a problem for a while with the formatting in some forum posts. If someone posts a link for a website within their post it causes the font size of the entire topic to be quite small. It's only t his way on my android mobile phone. It's fine on my PC.
Sorry to start off with a bug. It does seem very smooth to use though. many thanks. David.

Nice work, I especially like the new font, has a nice clean look.

One thing I would like to see again is the ability to view a history of forum threads that I have posted in.

In Christ,

Great suggestion brother, we can put that on the list of things to add back and even better then before.

The font is certainly easier though the colours are often hard to read. Why not try a Stark white on navy or black?

Hello,

thanks for your comments and ideas. Are you referring to the cont color for text is hard to read or the top GREEN backgr ound is hard to read? GREEN is the color branding of SermonIndex so it will be hard to change that.

It took me a day or two, but I really like the new look!

The bit of color coming through in the photo of David Wilkerson, with the green "wash" over it, is a nice touch.

One feature that I would wish for is a "back to top" button at the bottom of the page. ðŸ™•

Blessings
