Why is big tech presenting to us a distorted view of what womanhood is supposed to be? In todays Google Doodle about women's day, no man was depicted, no heterosexual family was featured, but rather lesbian partnerships. God created man and women in his image and they need each other. Who created the idea that women has to be like man in all aspects? Let woman be women and man be man. Man should be masculine but need not to be macho and woman can be feminine without being feminist. We are different from each other, and that is something to embrace, not to fight. Where are the true men and true women of today who do not bow to the agenda of pressure groups?
