

News and Current Events :: NBC's 'Book of Daniel' Sparks Fire-and-Brimstone Reaction

NBC's 'Book of Daniel' Sparks Fire-and-Brimstone Reaction - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2005/12/29 10:17

[Image: https://www.sermonindex.net/images/forum/2004/may/featured_news.gif]

NEW YORK Â— Conservative Christians are gearing up for a holy war of sorts over NBC's forthcoming show "The Book of Daniel," airing the first week of 2006.

The American Family Association (AFA), a leading group in the Christian right movement, has called for a boycott of the series about a self-medicating Episcopalian priest whose son is gay, whose daughter deals pot and whose wife is a mid day martini-lover.

The program "is an example of that network's anti-Christian bigotry," said the AFA in a press release widely distributed on Wednesday. The group claims that the network has received more than 400,000 e-mails complaining about the show.

Re: NBC's 'Book of Daniel' Sparks Fire-and-Brimstone Reaction - posted by groh_frog, on: 2005/12/29 11:40

Should I start another article on why I'm personally pretty against TV in general? We need purity not only within these countries, but first within the body. The fact that shows like this might be tolerated is scary when thinking about the condition of many of our hearts.

Grace and Peace...

Re: - posted by sermonindex (), on: 2005/12/29 12:37

Quote:
-----Should I start another article on why I'm personally pretty against TV in general? We need purity not only within these countries, but first within the body.

Yes that would be good to start another thread on that topic. I am also believing more and more that TV is not suitable to be watched by Christians. Frankly we have many other good things to do.