

Miracles that follow the plow :: Taking an exam...

Taking an exam... - posted by ccchhhrrriiisss (), on: 2006/3/16 10:16

Hello...

Today, I will be taking the Departmental Exam necessary for completing Graduate School. If possible, could you please pray for me? I will begin taking the exam this morning and will complete it at about 5pm (U.S. Central Standard time).

While I feel confident on most sections that will be covered, I am a little concerned about some of the material that I haven't studied for several years. Please pray that God brings all of this material freshly into my mind as if I studied it recently!

Thank you for your prayers! He is so faithful!

:)

Re: Taking an exam..., on: 2006/3/16 10:36

Praying for you.

Let us know how it turns out!

:)

Re: Taking an exam..., on: 2006/3/16 12:37

Chris,

Came on this rather late, but praying now.

Prayers... - posted by ccchhhrrriiisss (), on: 2006/3/17 14:57

Hello...

Even though I was exhausted and a little "under-the-weather," I did very well on the test. This means that I will be graduating with my Masters in May.

Now, I would ask for prayer concerning life after school. Currently, I am working at the University as a Web Developer, as well as a Graduate Research Assistant at the South Texas Archives. I have applied for a job at NASA (where I have interned three times), but I will not find out about this until April or possibly May. I would really like to begin working full-time right now. Other options include immediately beginning a PhD program. Please pray that my steps are directed by the Lord.

Thank you for all of your prayers.

:)